Monkey Men Calendar has the latest printouts of the month schedule posted in the fridge or is ready-made for eries hiding in the sheet protector in front of the binder. It is very easy to use (install the trial and you will be able to watch a 90-second video tutorial). Enter a scheduled appointment for the month, add some items to the to-do list, and print with a few clicks to customize the overall look. Don't fussy with templates and PowerPoint calendars are visually attractive with 16 unique backgrounds (from calm steel blue to high energy monkey faces) and a selection of colorful stickers that can be used to represent special events such as soccer games, birthday parties and vacations. You can also custom create your own stickers very easily. The text you type is very small and a little hard to read, so it depends on these stickers as well. At least the items in the to-do list are large and bold. The photo in the upper right corner can be switched to your own photo, or another of the stock images provided by Monkeymen. - Lee Ann Jones Note: If you buy something after clicking on the link in our article, we can get a small fee. But it's not just the calendar. At the very least, my theory is that if you don't care about the calendar software used to track events or the style and layout of the calendar format, you don't need a calendar at all. Maybe it's a matter of taste and aesthetics, maybe it's a touch of OCD. But if you're like a calendar, there are a few decent options for heading into the New Year. Word is always lacking in providing useful built-in calendar templates - heavy on ugly design elements and has shed light on features. So I've built this little bare bone template that automatically inserts dates for you according to the number of days you specify. There is space for you to enter your appointments and activities. And there's not much else. It's obvious, but it's practical. (If you feel the urge, you can put a little clip art on it.) Snowflakes in January. Then you have a choice of pickers, microsoft office online courtesy. These are prefabricated calendars for different applications and purposes. 64 of them in total. Visio, Excel, Publisher, and Word formats have many academic calendars. Calendars by month, year, and multi-year. Portraits, landscapes, 5 days, 7. A variety of incredibly ugly PowerPoint calendars including some misguided stripes and a kind of Madras check. Lunar calendars, photo calendars, and posted calendars for different time zones (people who knew the month would work that way). And even a basic 12-month calendar of Word without a single scrap of the nonsense of Art Deco design. If your preference is running that way. Happy Calendar!The circular calendar works in a 260-day cycle. One theory for the significance of its cycle length is that 260 days correlates with pregnancy [Source: Maya Mystery School]. Another suggestion is that the calendar represents the length of time it takes to grow corn. But it is likely to have been based on the Mayan respect for the numbers 13 and 20. In the Gregorian calendar, there are 7 days of the week and any place from 28th to 31st, depending on the month. The Tzolk'in calendar consists of 20 day names symbolized by an image called glyphs and 13 numbers called tones. The days of the week are numbered from 1 to 13, and the names are specified in order. The start of the ad Tzolk'in calendar begins with the first day's name, Imix', and number one. The day continues in order, and the second day is a combination of Ik' and No. 2. 13 The day names and numbers are combined sequentially until all 13 tones are used. When the calendar reaches the 13th, the numbers B'en and 13 begin with 1, but the day name advances with the 14th glyph ix. By rotating in this way, the two sets form a unique combination of 260 of the day names and numbers. For example, at 7 Ajaw, when the end of the day name cycle is reached, Imix starts with a new day name followed by a number: 8 Imix', 9 Ik', 10 Ak'bal, etc. This content is not compatible with this device. Think of two interlocking gears by positioning 13 numbers around a small circular gear that fits inside the large gear of the day indicated by the hieroglyphist. If you lock these gears together with number one and day name Imix', you will get 260 unique days by reaching one gear and rotating the gear until it reaches Imix' again. These gears rotate until the final combination clicks in place at 13 Ajaw and marks the end of the year. It's easy to see the importance of the Mayans in the Tsorkuin calendar. For example, they believed that your date of birth would determine the characteristics shown in your personality - just like anyone who believes that the signs of your astrology will do today. Holy men also schedule specific events throughout the year based on the Zork Inn calendar. At the beginning of each uninal (20 days), the shaman counts forward to determine when religious and ceremonial events occur. Then he chooses the date that will be the most prosperous or lucky for the community. Despite its myriad features, Tzolk'in calendar still could not measure the year of the sun, the time it takes for the sun to make a full cycle. For this reason, the Mayans needed a more accurate calendar to keep track of the length of time we regarded throughout the year.
